

John T. Litynski

Strategic Center for Coal
Office of Coal Power Research and Development
United States Department of Energy
National Energy Technology Laboratory
Washington, D.C.

John currently serves as the Technology Manager for Carbon Sequestration in the Office of Coal Power Research and Development at the National Energy Technology Laboratory. John is responsible for managing a portfolio of applied research and development projects on geologic storage and CO₂ utilization which includes the Regional Carbon Sequestration Partnerships. He has over 15 years of experience working on environmental compliance and technology development for the energy industry and Department of Defense. John is a registered Professional Engineer and Project Management Professional. He received his B.S. in Civil Engineering from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University and M.S. from Johns Hopkins University in Environmental Engineering and Science.